In partnership with the Family and Domestic Violence Unit, the Men's Advisory Network established a steering committee to investigate the extent and nature of intimate partner abuse of men. Lotterywest provided a grant to undertake this research.

Professor Alfred Allan and Dr Greg Dear of the School of Psychology at Edith Cowan University were selected as the research partners to undertake the study. Emily Tilbrook was the Senior Research Assistant who undertook the study.

The report will be available to be downloaded from www.man.org.au from 26 May 2010.

Morning Seminar

- Professor Alfred Allan will explain the methodology.
- Emily Tilbrook will present the results of the interviews.
- Dr Greg Dear will present the results of the survey.

(These three presentations will be in greater detail than at the launch and will emphasise the implications for service delivery).

- Professor Rob Donovan will talk about men's help seeking behaviour.
- Richard Wolterman from Lifeline is developing two model service packages for both male victims and women who are using abuse and violence.

Afternoon Workshop

The workshop groups will address several questions:

- How should services for male victims be designed?
- How do you engage male victims in the services?
- Who should provide the services and how should they be funded?
- What changes, if any, should be made to existing male perpetrator services and female victim's services?
